About the NDIS Commission

The National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) supports NDIS participants across Australia.

Participants are people with disability who take part in the NDIS.

We make sure participants:

- are safe
- get good quality services.

Quality is about receiving good services that:

- meet the needs of people with disability

- give people with disability choice and control.

We make sure NDIS providers are doing a good job.

Providers support people by delivering a service.

We manage a list of NDIS providers.

We call them registered providers.

Registered providers:

- must follow certain rules that we set

- can offer certain supports and services to participants.

We also make sure NDIS providers and workers follow the rules.

We help:

- fix problems

- make NDIS supports and services better.

We also help participants speak up for themselves if someone:

- hurts them
- treats them badly
- doesn't give them what they promised.

We also handle complaints about the supports and services people get from NDIS providers.

When you make a complaint, you tell someone that something:

- has gone wrong
- isn't working well.

What we did last year

Each year, we write a report about the work we've done in the past year.

This report explains what we did between:

- 1 July 2021
- and
- 30 June 2022.

Making sure we work well

In February 2022 we started a new project to look at:

- the way we work
- how we can be a better regulator.

A regulator makes sure:

- everything works well
- everyone follows the rules.

We also found out about how we can improve the way providers become registered with us.

Protecting participants

In August 2021 we started looking into complaints about supported accommodation.

Supported accommodation is a type of housing for people with disability that also provides day-to-day support.

We plan to share a report about what we found in late 2022.

In 2021 we also looked at how people use restrictive practices.

And how they can use less of them.

Restrictive practices are actions that stop people from:

- moving
- doing what they want.

Online training

In 2021–22 we shared information about supporting people with disability during mealtime. This included creating online training for workers.

People with disability can have swallowing issues. This means they have a higher risk of choking when they eat.

We also shared information about how to communicate clearly with people with disability. This included creating new training on our website.

It shows:

- different ways people with disability might communicate
- how workers can support people with disability to communicate.

NDIS Workforce Capability Framework

The NDIS Workforce Capability Framework explains what we expect from the workers who support participants in their daily lives.

We call it the Framework.

The Framework can also help participants explain how they want to receive support.

We worked with participants to create it.

We shared the first part of the Framework in July 2021.

We are still working on the second part of the Framework.

But we've shared it on our website to find out what you think.

You can find the Framework on our website.

Providers

By 30 June 2022 we had 19,739 registered providers.

A behaviour support plan is a document with steps for improving behaviour.

In 2021–22 we received 7,843 complaints.

This led to us looking into 2,754 providers.

We asked 143 providers to fix what they were doing.

And we told 34 providers they could not provide certain NDIS services anymore.

Information we shared

We shared 12,164 information packs with participants.

This included:

- 5,948 standard packs

- 5,788 packs in Easy Read

- 428 packs in Braille.

We also shared 2,991 information packs with providers.

Online training

32,424 people have finished our training about how to communicate clearly with people with disability.

This was between October 2021 and 30 June 2022.

6,633 people have finished our training about how to support people with disability during mealtimes.

This was between April 2022 and 30 June 2022.

96% of people who finished our training and took a survey said it was good or very good.

97% of people said our training helped them learn how to better support people with disability.
